Society or its' Committee*

Just a Sec!

As most of you probably know I've volunteered to take on the role of Secretary for the Society, as well as staying on as editor of The Warbler. Not sure exactly what it entails but no doubt I'll soon find out. I've already been receiving correspondence from the RA including a very long missive from Eastleigh RA who have submitted a number of proposed National RA Society Rule changes. I have read through them but started to loose the will to live half way through—must do better I know.

However a much more interesting bit of news is that Woking are once more to play host to the next RAFA training event, at our April meeting. This is the third of the "trial" events and is titled intriguingly "Grab the Opportunity" and will be presented by Roger Vaughan who is the FA National Referees Manager for Referee Development.

As Woking RA has been nominated as a training "Hub" we will be inviting local RAs to join us for what I'm sure, if the past two events have anything to go by, be an interesting yet educational evening. I should have more information for you in next month's Warbler.

The Appointments list for the Surrey County Cup Finals has been issued (see page 13.) Many congratulations to all of you who have been appointed games. Good to see that Woking is well represented with 2 Referees, 6 Assistant Referees, 2 Reserve Referees, and 1 Observer. Enjoy your day guys.

There is a meeting planned next week with representatives from Guilford RA and Camberley and Farnham RA to further discuss the possibility of combining all three RAs into one super "West Surrey RA" Society. It's very early days yet and we can't see anything happening, if at all, for at least a year or so, but will keep you all posted.

This month's meeting includes our 89th Annual General Meeting, which should be fairly painless as there are no rule amendments to discuss or vote on and the re-election of the Committee and Officers looks pretty straightforward. It should therefore be over in pretty short time and I've been informed that Chairman Pat has something up his sleeve to keep us amused for the rest of the evening.

See you next Monday

Approved – Gareth Heighes
Seconded – Barry Rowland

Officers Reports:

Vice Chairman

Colin gave a quick resume of the year, including his pride of being a member of such a great society and urged all members to keep up their good work.

Secretary

Pat thanked the society and the committee for their hard work, collectively.

- ◆ The average attendance of each society meeting was down for the last year by an average of one (27 to 26)
- ◆ Advised that as a national average across all RAs', we were 15th for size of society.
- ◆ Urged members to keep coming up with fresh ideas for the society to keep it vibrant, interesting and attractive to current and prospective new members alike.
- ◆ Impressed on the continued quality of our guest speakers.
- ◆ Asked for continued support of the membership

Membership & Accounts

Bryan gave his report to the room.

- ◆ 2015 saw a loss of £279.82 vs a profit in 2014 of £258.91
 - ◇ Reasons for the loss were given – mainly down to a new computer purchased for the continued publication of the Warbler magazine which cost £300
- ◆ Woking RA is still owed money from Surrey FA
- ◆ All expenditure continues to be approved by the committee
- ◆ Assets of the society currently c£2000
- ◆ Thanked Ken Chivers for his work on the accounts – this was appreciated by the whole room.

Mac raised the point that as a society we have c£300 stamp stock for Warbler distribution.

Vince Penfold asked Bryan if there was a need to raise cost of subscription and the answer was no; we are in a relatively healthy position with 50+ members, a raffle that averages £25 each society night and £100+ raised usually during the Xmas Dinner & Raffle.

Dave Cooper asked Bryan as to the reasons for a £69 loss showing on the accounts; Bryan responded by informing the room that this was due to inviting and paying for guests at the Xmas Dinner such as our friends/colleagues from Woking FC Football in the Community in 2015.

Accounts

Proposed – Bryan Jackson

Seconded – Barry Rowland

Membership saw 57 full members, seven friends of the society and one affiliate member.

This is a gain of three from 2014.

As at Feb 1st, the total membership was 60.

Training Officer

Vince addressed the room and gave a report from the training team.

- ◆ Three courses were run again this year in association with Surrey FA for the New Referees Course. Members of the society were thanked by Vince for their help with this.
- ◆ Two members have progressed to FA Level One Tutor. Society now has four tutors at various levels within the FA structure
- ◆ 76 new referees have been trained this season/year
- ◆ Successful year
- ◆ Society now has its own training kit
- ◆ C£700 in society training account which is healthy
- ◆ It was stressed that we need more ideas from within our membership to develop referees
- ◆ Also another 65 referees have been trained via mini-soccer with thanks given to Barry Rowland for this and his activity within

Academy & Supplies Officer

Gareth thanked the membership for their support during his time in his new role and he indicated that he is looking forward to working with us all throughout the coming year/season.

Warbler

Mac thanked everyone for their contributions to the magazine.

- ◆ Appeal for more advertising - £35 for ½ page, £60 full page are the costs
- ◆ The Warbler continues to gain praise and recognition from all angles within the RA, it still is the envy of many societies and we should be very proud of it.

Rule AmendmentsRule 5.2 – Role of the Chairman. (max 3 year tenure)

Proposed - Bryan Jackson

Seconded - Dave Lawton

Bryan gave the arguments for the motion, along with contributions from Vince.

Martin Read gave a very eloquent case against the motion.

It was put to the vote – results were:

- ◆ For = 7
 - ◆ Against = 4
- Motion Carried

Subscriptions – No Increase

Bryan Jackson suggested that there was no need to increase the cost of subscriptions for the forthcoming year and asked the room for support on this.

- ◆ £36 full membership for year
- ◆ £29 Under 18s for year
- ◆ £20 donation (suggested) from Friends

Proposed – Barry Rowland

Seconded – Tony Price

President

Vince addressed the room with the following points:

- ◆ Thanks to the following for their continued support
 - ◇ Committee
 - ◇ Ken Chivers for his work on the accounts
 - ◇ Mac and the Warbler publication – we are proud to have this as part of our society
 - ◇ Bryan Jackson
 - ◇ Pat Bakhuizen
 - ◇ Colin Barnett

Lastly, Vince took time to give special thanks to Barry Rowland for his time, energy and effort during his time as Chairman. It was acknowledged by all members in the room that despite tough personal circumstances this last year, Barry had always tried to put the Society first and worked hard for the membership and this was appreciated by all. Thank you Barry.

Chairman

Pat Bakhuizen was elected as our new Chairman with immediate effect with a unanimous vote in favour from the room.

Committee

All positions on the committee were carried.

Accounts/Independent Examiner

Ken Chivers to continue as independent examiner of society accounts

Proposed – Bryan Jackson

Seconded – Merrill Readett

Life President

It was agreed by all members in the room that after the sad passing of Cedge Gregory earlier in the year, the society would keep the position of Life President vacant at this time.

AOB:

There was no AOB and therefore the meeting was officially closed at 8.45pm

End of Year Accounts 2016

The Society Accounts, have been independently examined and despite a very small loss being made for the year continue to show that the society is in a healthy financial position.

The committee have also confirmed that there will be no need to propose a subscription increase for 2017/2018, but I will be seeking a restructure of the way we ask for subscriptions showing the Warbler fee as a separate amount. This needs ratification by members at the AGM.

Whilst carrying out his annual check of the accounts Ken Chivers found that he had made an error last year which resulted in our published loss of £ 279.82 for 2015 actually being a profit of £44.18. Carrying this forward for 2016 has resulted in a small loss of £7.03 for the year. The cause of the error was the way he treated the training fund and funds not received from Surrey FA. He will be able to explain this at the AGM.

Just to pick out some points from the accounts:

- ◇ Supplies profit was down £109.60 as we cannot sell as much equipment on the courses.
- ◇ Whilst the dinner made a loss of £154.90 due to lower attendance we recouped £119.05 from the raffle but this is included in the raffles figure as usual.
- ◇ We are still awaiting some Warbler advert income, which will be included in the 2017 accounts.

All of the expenditure was approved by the committee.

Membership numbers at 31st December 2016

108 Full Members
10 Friends
1 Affiliate member

This is an increase of 51 full members, this is because we now register all newly trained referees as members of the Referees Association which includes making them members of the society. We trained 48 referees during 2016, which shows that our membership increased by 7 above those newly trained.

We are still the Society with the highest membership in Surrey and in the top 5 nationally.

If anyone has any questions please email me and I will answer and provide that answer to all members and at the AGM.

Finally, my thanks again to Ken Chivers for his prompt turnaround of the accounts.

MURPHY'S MEANDERINGS

I was interested to read recently the problems the Premier League have had regarding the appointment of an official to a game near to where he lives. I believe that officials now complete an allegiance form giving details of where they live, any teams they have played for or who they support. In my time on the Football League linesmen's panel in the eighties and nineties this never happened. My understanding was that referees and linesmen couldn't officiate within nineteen miles of their home. Why nineteen I haven't a clue, possibly I've got it wrong, but I was never allowed to go to Aldershot or Reading as they were deemed too close to my home. The funny thing is that I had been a Millwall fan since I was six and as I climbed the refereeing ladder my ambition to officiate there came nearer and nearer. Nobody knew, of course and, as I lived in Basingstoke, it was inevitable that when I achieved the Football League line I would go there. As it happens my first ever game on the Football League was at Millwall and I eventually lined there over twelve times on the Football League and refereed a couple of times on the Football Combination. My one and only "World Cup" goal, a shot that hits the underneath of the bar and bounces over the goal line before bouncing out, was given at Millwall, ironically against Millwall.

I never saw any problems officiating at Millwall. When I entered the pitch for any match my mind was concentrated on the game in hand not the teams. I refereed colours, not teams, and players moved too quick at that level and there was too much going on for me to be biased or even think about it. I can honestly say that during my ten years on the Football league I came across what I considered bad officials, and poor officials, but never one who was biased.

However, I have to agree that an allegiance form is the correct method. I'm only glad that it didn't apply in my day as otherwise I would not have achieved my ambition and would not have so many memories as I always found that things happened at Millwall. And yes, the Millwall fans treated me just the same as every other official, the enemy.

It was late on a Tuesday night in April at the end of my first season when I received a telephone call from the Sunday league referee's Secretary. A game cancelled in January had been arranged for the next night, Wednesday, and he had no referee, would I do it? I accepted the game and the following evening saw me at the ground getting changed. I was halfway through when an older, more experienced referee entered the dressing room and on seeing me asked what I was doing. I explained to him and he told me in no uncertain terms that he had been appointed to the original game and therefore he was going to do the rearranged fixture. I did not know the protocol and, in any event saw no point in arguing, so I got changed and left.

When I got home I rang the referees Secretary and appraised him of the situation. He told me he would come back to me. When he did he said that there was some misunderstanding between the league and the club and that they had contacted the original referee because they thought that was what they were supposed to do. He apologised and I thought that was the end of it. However, a few days later I received a letter from the league enclosing an apology and a cheque for my match fee.

Academy News

Hi All

First of all I like to would like to thank Merill Readett for standing In for me at the February meeting as my son was only a few days old .

The feedback I received was positive so thank you to all who participated and hope you enjoyed the session.

Moving forward to March we will be trying something new within the Academy.

We will attempting to conduct our first live interactive session via the Woking Referees' Society's new Instagram account. So if you are unable to make a meeting you can still be involved by following us on ;- Instagram wokingrefereesociety.

Please encourage fellow referees to follow us .

The Topic of this months' session will be "Dissent"

Looking for forward to seeing many of you in March - 7.30pm start .

All members welcome

No Name Ref!

Article written by Barry Goddon.

During the course of any game of football, players appeal to the referee for offences by the opposing side. The most common of these is claiming for "hands" - even when it is obvious the offence is accidental.

However, another appeal is now gaining ground in popularity, i.e. "He didn't call a name Ref" When told that a name does not have to be called/players are uncertain as to the Law.

Recently I refereed a game in which the "name" appeal was made several times. I did not penalise - as I have done many other matches. After the game, however, some of the players asked me for clarification of the Law as there is no consistency in the interpretation. They were given the correct meaning of the Law and were happy with the explanation given.

This concern by players, along with many other similar incidents in other games, has made me look at the Referees' interpretations of the-laws.

Shortly after the match referred to above, I was watching a County League game with a class I referee in charge. On two occasions, the referee penalised a player and told him the offence was not calling a name. As no unfair advantage had been gained on either occasion, the game should not have been stopped. Incidentally, the match was restarted with an indirect free kick - but a caution was not administered to either offending player.

Looking at Law 12 (Fouls and Misconduct), there is no offence for not calling a name and five offences are listed for which an indirect free kick can be awarded: (1) Dangerous play (2) Charging fairly when ball not -within playing distance (3) Intentional obstruction (4) Charging the goalkeeper - in certain circumstances and (5) Goalkeeper taking more than 4 steps in possession of time wasting. As the "calling offence" is not covered in these five, It can only be classified as "Ungentlemanly Conduct" - which must be punished by cautioning the player concerned and restarting with an indirect free kick.

However, to come into the "Ungentlemanly Conduct" category in the first place, the player must gain an unfair advantage - which may be in shouting "leave it" to an opponent. He may even shout "leave it John" to an opponent whose name he knows -this is also "Ungentlemanly Conduct although a name has been used. If a player shouts "leave it" to a team mate, provided the opposition are not tricked into leaving the ball, then no offence has occurred.

Until Referees read the Laws and understand them thoroughly: inconsistency is going to continue through mis-interpretation. It is therefore the duty of all Referees to know the Laws - AT PRESENT, IT APPEARS THAT MANY DO NOT.

This first appeared in the Pompey Whistler - Some things never change. Mac

Adie's Cheesed off—and with Winter

Better weather for February meant that we had more games played apart from the 11th of February that was downright perishing! I was lucky enough to be offered the Arthur Dunn Cup Q/Final along with Dave and Matt Simms. It was played at Charterhouse School, very high ground and at one point the sleet and snow came across the pitch horizontally! After the game all three of us retired to 'Chez Freeman' where Diane had the wood burner going and the cup of tea was welcomed by all. My wood-cutting efforts were very much appreciated by my colleagues and it was a pleasure to share the warmth with them.

County Cup Final appointments have been announced and congratulations to all who have been awarded one. I feel sure you will all do your Leagues and RA proud and remember, it is your final as well so I hope you will enjoy it. Speaking from past experience the game goes really quickly so make the most of it, you have deserved your reward.

One of my close friends gave me truly unusual Christmas present in the shape of a tin containing Cave Aged Cheddar. It was a really big cheese and even though youngest son Jamie appropriated a huge wedge (about a third) to take back home with him it still left well over 600g for Diane and I. I was talking about it to one of my work-mates and he expressed a desire to try it so I went on the internet and found the product. An order of two 450g 'truckles' of Wookie Hole Cave aged Cheddar duly arrived at work and was enjoyed by both of us during January. This month we ordered the same plus some 'Coastal Cheddar' – same delivery charge and we have another month's supply of really tasty cheese. Believe me, with some fresh crusty bread it is heaven!!

Almost finished cutting all the logs, a couple more days should see the end of it. My wood shed is bulging so hopefully that will see me through most of next year. This will give me more time on the woodcraft. I have plenty of ideas in my head and will soon set about the designs.

I have no doubt you are noticing how much lighter it is getting in the evenings and the spring flowers are well on the way. Last weekend I spotted plenty of crocuses on the grass verges (and in the garden) and the daff's will soon be out as well.

It all bodes well in my book - had enough of Winter!

Enjoy your games

Mark Clattenburg's Saudi Arabia move is the latest sign that England's refereeing is in crisis - Graham Poll (Daily Mail)

Mark Clattenburg has never felt well treated or respected by the authorities in English football.

He was removed from the Community Shield in 2008 and incorrectly sacked in 2009 after allegations about his business debts.

He also had to wait until 2016 to be appointed to the FA Cup final. The Jack the Lad Geordie just didn't fit with the FA's ideal.

I know how he feels having crossed swords on many occasions with the FA referees committee and their chairman David Elleray; the former Harrow house-master who liked his referees to be seen and not heard.

I'd imagine the only thing that could make 41-year-old Clattenburg stay a little longer was his inclusion on FIFA's shortlist at next year's World Cup. Given his recent record there was a possibility of him taking charge of the final.

Given his close relationship with Pierluigi Collina, it may be that his departure from the Premier League would not prevent his attendance in Russia. Saudi Arabia is a FIFA country and their referees are eligible to officiate at World Cup finals.

Clattenburg may be in the process of negotiating a position as a FIFA Saudi referee.

Alternatively he might just have decided that the way he has been treated means he felt no allegiance to England and so he took up this opportunity to referee and train local refs in Saudi Arabia.

Then there is the small matter of remuneration.

Premier League players are paid in excess of £250,000 a week, but all the referees are 'rewarded' equally. Those with five years' service or more are paid about £90,000 - that's for the year not per week.

Refereeing in this country really is in crisis and it is all down to the management of the top referees and the development of those further down the refereeing ladder.

Howard Webb retired early after his World Cup success; I walked away when 42, totally disillusioned with the way referees were treated by the FA.

Surely the powers-that-be must see there is a damning pattern and investigate the entire set-up.

There is an ever-weakening select group of referees and a dearth of talent to replace them.

Of course the Premier League will carry on without Clattenburg, but the best league deserves the best refs and we've just lost one of the very best.

Mark Clattenburg to continue as Premier League referee until end of season (Guardian)

England's leading match official announced last week that he was to leave his position on the panel of elite referees to succeed Howard Webb in the role in the Middle East but will serve out his notice period.

The 41-year-old, who was recently voted the best referee in the world at Dubai's Globe Soccer Awards, had announced his intention to help "improve refereeing and the education of officials" with the Saudi Arabian Football Federation.

However, he remains under contract with Professional Game Match Officials Ltd (PGMOL) until the end of the current campaign and, having spoken with the referees' manager, Mike Riley, over recent days, will be available until the summer. Depending on commitments relating to his new role, he is likely to oversee at least four matches between now and the end of the campaign, when he will formally take up his £500,000-a-year tax free role in Riyadh.

He is understood to have turned down an even more lucrative offer to work in China.

Clattenburg's career, while controversial at times, has seen him take charge of such showpiece events as the Champions League final, FA Cup final and the final of Euro 2016 in Paris last summer. Despite appearing at a press conference in Saudi Arabia last week to explain his new role – he is succeeding Webb, who resigned from his position earlier this month to take up a similar job with Major League Soccer – it had never been formally confirmed that the County Durham official would cease to be available for Premier League fixtures.

His discussions with Riley, with whom he has endured a fractious relationship at times given his reservations over the internal politics at PGMOL, are understood to have been amicable and, with 13 rounds of games still to be played in the Premier League this term, Clattenburg will feature again over his three-month notice period. Officials are selected on a match-by-match basis, with his availability to be determined in a similar way.

"Mark set standards for others to follow," said a PGMOL statement last week once news of the move to Saudi had been confirmed. "He has been a great asset to the English game and hopefully an inspiration to those who want to get into refereeing at the grass-roots of the game. We understand this is an exciting opportunity for Mark."

Elleray Red Card for Van Basten's Plan

FA referees chief David Elleray chose to be highly critical of FIFA technical director Marco van Basten just before the Holland legend and the rest of the Zurich leadership come to London for the rules-governing IFAB summit next week.

Van Basten has proposed radical changes to the laws to stir debate. These include replacing penalty shoot-outs with hockey-style eight-second run-ups from 25 metres, scrapping offside and introducing orange cards for 10-minute sin-bin offences.

"But arch-traditionalist Elleray was scathing about the suggestions when he addressed FIFA referees at their annual meeting held in Leeds.

The timing of the attack is surprising, especially considering the FA's desire to build bridges with FIFA. The FA didn't comment and FIFA said Van Basten's suggestions were personal rather than FIFA-endorsed.

- SPECULATION that elite referee Michael Oliver will follow Howard Webb to work with him in Major League Soccer will only grow after Oliver was at Borehamwood last Sunday to watch the testimonial match for England women's record goalscorer Kelly Smith.

Webb was the official in charge and Oliver's wife Lucy was an assistant referee. Oliver, who will arguably be the top referee in the Premier League when Mark Clattenburg departs for Saudi Arabia, has ambitions of officiating at a World Cup and could be in contention to take the latter's place at Russia 2018 if he doesn't join Webb in the US. But it may be that FIFA referees chief Pierluigi Collina arranges for Clattenburg, of whom he is a big fan, to go as a Saudi Arabia representative.

I must admit, your explanation of the offside law was spot-on!

Respect

The word Respect quote clearly means different things to different people!

There are those who believe, perhaps innocently, arrogantly or naively, that if you put on any kind of uniform you are entitled to respect. A minority still believes that anyone who is older than themselves should be entitled to respect. Others believe that nobody at all is entitled to respect, because it must be earned. If you don't earn it by your general attitude to other people, why should they respect you, is the way they think. One can only wonder whether those folk who are always sounding off about Respect have ever bothered to consult a good dictionary to find out for themselves what the word means and implies.

When the FA introduced the Respect campaign a few years ago, they did so to try to instil better standards of behaviour throughout football at all levels of the game. It worked really well for a time, but then in some compensation there are simply too many participants, including many who should and probably do know what is expected of them as humans, who simply treat Respect as a joke.

If you watch carefully what happens when the pre-match handshake by the players takes place, just take a look at the blank expressions on many faces. Those expressions often indicate boredom and suggest that many players are not at all interested in anything that Respect might imply. This is sad indeed because things should never be like that. Is there a case now for revising some of the aspects of this ceremonial handshake, one might wonder? What would be the implications of making the team managers and assistant managers line up alongside their players? After all, it is often the case that these people are the first to demonstrate in public that they do not want to be involved in offering Respect to anyone from the opposing club and certainly not towards the match officials.

When you attend games, you of course hear comments concerning Respect. This season alone I have heard such comments as these

- ◇ □ "Why should I respect him when he didn't give us what I thought was an obvious penalty?"
- ◇ □ "He deserves no respect if he makes a mistake. He's a referee and he shouldn't make mistakes"
- ◇ □ "No chance! It's the players who shake hands, not me. I'm the manager".

Such comments are not at all good for the game.

A couple of weeks ago, I heard a sensible spectator make an interesting comment after a rather unpleasant incident on the field that had started with disrespectful comments to all and sundry coming from the manager. This spectator shook his head, turned to me and said, "I think they ought to make them all shake hands again after the game, not only before it." As I drove home after the game I wondered if the managers should also be included in that suggested post-match handshake. After all, the present system is not working perfectly, is it?

(This first appeared on BENCHMARK, the magazine of Sheffield & Hallamshire RS, and spotted in the Chiltern Referee. Interestingly The Surrey Primary League make the players line up and shake hands after the game including managers—but not necessarily the Referee !

The Adventures of Willy 'Red Card' Woodwork The Whistling Referee

Part 55 - All systems 'Go'

Match: Parkside Thistle v F.C. Dog & Duck
 League: Division Three – Sunday Park League (North)
 Venue: Hackney Marshes – Home of the 'Thistle'
 Colours: Thistle in all green and Dog & Duck in blue and white stripes

All good referees need to arrive early at the venue so they can prepare in good time in a relaxed manner. For local park football I would suggest arriving one hour before kick-off.

There is so much to do -

- ◇ Find the teams and introduce yourself
- ◇ Inspect the pitch
- ◇ Change into your kit
- ◇ Have match balls been made available for inspection
- ◇ Have team sheets been given to you if applicable

The referee needs to be proactive to ensure everything has been checked and is ready for the kick off as stipulated. Being an experienced and a good referee I made sure that all the checks were carried out with the exception of one which was the pitch inspection. The reason for this is simple as any referee will tell you because Hackney Marshes has over one hundred pitches all side by side. You can look all around and the marshes just seem to go on forever. It can be a good ten to fifteen minute walk if your pitch is on the far side so in this instance the pitch inspection is always just prior to the kick off.

I went to find the changing room for the home team. As I walked along the corridor I recognised one of the players. 'Not you again' he ranted. 'You red carded me a few weeks ago and this is my first game back since my three match suspension. I have to tell you I think you are a complete and utter .' I told the player not to speak to me in that tone. I told him 'That match is over so let's focus on today's match.' The player decided to swear at me again and I had no other choice to inform him that he would be taking no part in today's match as I am red carding him again. The manager said the referee has no jurisdiction prior to the match kick and that I was wrong in law to tell the player that he could play but I know all the laws and I was confident that I was correct.

- ◇ Can a player be shown a red card before the match in the changing room?

I did consult with another referee who naturally agreed with me. I told the manager that he could still start with eleven players but could only have two substitutes as opposed to three. He had no other option other than to accept my decision. If a player in the starting line-up is shown a red card before the match is Willie correct to tell the manager that they have one substitute less?

With the incident now all settled it was time to find the pitch. The manager gave me the directions and said 'See you out there' as he run off. His directions were to turn right out of the changing rooms and carry on walking past nine pitches. Then turn left and keep walking for four pitches, then turn right and our pitch is the third on the left. With the sat-nav being in the car I thought how difficult could it be to find the pitch? As I left the changing rooms I turned right as instructed.

Then I heard a voice say 'Hi Ref, how are you?' I turned around, it was a fellow referee. There is always a great comradery between fellow match officials and we started chatting about our forthcoming matches.

Unfortunately this had a detrimental effect on my counting the pitches and I basically lost count.

I looked around and remembered it was the third pitch on the left and this was confirmed when I saw a team wearing an all green kit. 'Great' I thought to myself, this is obviously Parkside Thistle. I checked the pitch and all was fine. The markings were good and the goals were secure with the nets all okay. The boot and jewellery check was carried out and I was delighted there were no white tape wrapped around the blue socks. I whistled for the two captains to come to the centre and we flipped the coin. Both teams were ready to play so I looked around to check both teams had eleven on the pitch. I blew my whistle and the game began.

The next ten minutes all went exceedingly well. Both teams were accepting my decisions.....what a good ref I must be.

Out of the corner of my eye I noticed a number of players trying to get my attention. They were all dressed in the all green kit so I assumed that Parkside Thistle wanted to make a substitution. Oh how wrong could I have been!

When the ball next went out of play for a throw on I went over to the 'substitutes' on the touch line. 'Hi Ref, we wondered where you had got to. We're playing on the pitch over there. You do know that this is not your game'. I was flabbergasted but more embarrassed. I don't know why but I answered 'Yes, of course I know. I'm just helping these two teams out.' I made my apologies to the two teams and quickly went over to the right teams on the right pitch. I then had to go through all the pre match procedures again.

We all make mistakes but this one was one story that I did not intend sharing with any other referees.....ever!

What was your most embarrassing referee moment.....I would love to know.

See you all next time!

What Would You Do - Answers to January Issue

Q1. A Red striker breaks his wrist during a game but, as his team are a goal down and have used all their subs, the physio straps it up and he goes back on. While waiting for a corner to be taken, a Blue defender gives his wrist a gentle tap and the Red player collapses in agony. His team mates demand a penalty. The defender claims he is play-acting. What would you do?. What would you do?

A1. Not a penalty - the ball is not in play. If you have not seen the incident, speak to the player and his captain. If you have seen the incident dismiss the defender for violent conduct. Restart with a corner kick.

Q2. The home keeper is wearing no gloves and a short-sleeved jersey and his team mates are also in short-sleeves. At half time you are informed that TV replays have identified a home defender, and not the goalkeeper, has twice punched the ball away. What would you do?

A2. Ignore such comments at half time. The referee is at fault. He should have ensured before KO that the keeper is dressed according to the requirements of the law. Report the details to the league.

Q3. You award a last minute free kick, right on the touchline, near the dugouts which are extremely close to the touchline. The Red taker prepares to launch the ball into the Blue penalty area so wants to start his run-up from off the FoP, in the technical area. However, the opposition manager stands in the way of his run-up and refuses to budge. He insists he can stand wherever he wants inside the technical area. What would you do?

A3. The manager is wrong. The technical area isn't his own personal area. Ask him to stand aside to allow the player to take the kick - and if he fails to respond in a positive manner, send him to the stand for delaying the restart.

Q4. As players sprint into the box a Red attacker appears to tear a muscle and collapses. The chasing Blue defender stops, but another attacker leaps over his team mate and kicks the ball into the empty net. What would you do?

A4. Award a goal and call on the physio. It wasn't a deliberate attempt to impede an opponent. The defender should play to the whistle.

Q5. On a bitterly cold day a striker wears two official shirts at once - his original and an identical replacement. But in the second half he over-heats, so throws one to a young fan during a stoppage. He is already on a yellow card. What do you do?

A5. No action is required; there is no reason to penalise the player. He can wear two identical layers if his is cold, and then take one off.

Q6. In an epic shoot-out a team's eleventh player walks up to take his kick. But he starts swearing at you clearly hoping you'll send him off so that the team's star striker can take the kick instead. What would you do?

A6. It's a deliberate attempt to con you. Although it may seem unfair, you must dismiss the player and allow another player to take the kick. Report the facts to the competition and allow them to take any appropriate action.

Q7 A player takes an accidental knock to the head and ends up in a heap just off the FoP. As the physio races over, the opposition have a scoring chance, so you play on. But as the attack continues the player rolls back onto the FoP, followed by the physio. What would you do?

A7. It's a head injury but no need to stop play. The player landed off the pitch and is receiving medical attention; neither the player or the physio are interfering with play. So await the outcome of the attack and then stop play delaying the restart until the injury has been fully dealt with. If you think the incident was a ruse to disrupt the opposition attack, caution him for entering the field without your permission.

(Ed. Questions 1-3 were taken from "In the referee's opinion" in Touchlines - Sutton RS); and 4-7 from "You Are The Ref" by Keith Hackett and Paul Trevillion).

What Would You Do?

Question 1.

A keeper pumps the air after making a world-class fingertip save - and the opposition race off to take a quick corner. But you don't think he touched it - and your assistant just shrugs. What would you do?

Question 2.

A midfield No. 7 commits a foul which you judge is worth a second yellow card but you play advantage as the opposition are rapidly approaching the goal. But when their shot is cleared off the line, the ball drops straight to the No 7 you intended to caution. He turns and, seeing the keeper off his line, launches an audacious punt which flies into the net. What would you do?

Question 3. In a fractious cup tie between two local teams, you have already had to show more cards than you would like. The away side are leading 2-1 as you enter the final moment of stoppages. But you have dismissed their right-back for a DOGSO trip and a home side's forward, who has already received a caution for earlier comments to one of your assistants, is about to take the game into extra time from the penalty mark. You signal for the kick to be taken. The forward takes two steps, pauses, takes two further steps and swings his foot to kick the ball, only to stop dead with his foot just inches from the ball. The keeper is already diving to his left so the forward watches him and then coolly strokes the ball into the opposite corner. What would you do?

Question 4.

While you try to control a wild melee, the away side sneakily swap a defender or a striker from their bench. You only realise when the striker scores the winner moments later. What would you do?

Question 5.

Late in the second half, you ask a player with blood on his shirt to leave the pitch and change it. As play continues, he grabs a new shirt and races back on but, in his haste, has put it on inside-out, obscuring his name and number. What would you do?

Question 6.

A defender, already on a yellow card, takes his team's ninth penalty in a shoot-out, and skies it badly. In his anger he turns and kicks at the penalty spot, gouging a hole in the surface. Opponents are outraged and refuse to take their potentially decisive kick until he is sent-off and the surface re-laid. What would you do?

Question 7.

A Blue defender attempts to head a corner over the bar to safety. But it deflects off his man-bun and into his own net. When the ball made contact, the man-bun flew off, revealing it to be a clip-on. What would you do?
